PARENT & CHILD EDUCATIONAL PLAYGROUP CLASS DESCRIPTION

Ms. Ginger's class is designed to be an inspiring part of your journey in parenting, while also providing tools to support daily life with your child within the family you have created. Together, we create a simple, nourishing rhythm that you and your child can thrive on. We will play, craft, sing, move our bodies and listen to stories. Each class also offers the time to observe your child, connect with other parents, and discuss practical skills for parenting. Our topics may include the child's sensory world, why play is important, sleep, self-care, media, and whatever may arise in our time together!

This open, non-judgmental space allows you to come as you are, ask questions if you wish, and find support and compassion.

We Value Parents and Children by Providing Opportunities to:

- Observe and delight in the changes that characterize the first three years of life
- Explore ways to support each other as Mothers and Fathers and Caregivers
- Meet the child with wonder, respect, and a growing sense of capability
- Develop trust in the inner life of the child and let him/her experience the world as good
- Witness the joyful movement a child freely explores in his/her body
- Observe ways of being with our children and discover simplicity in our parenting
- Enjoy the seasons of the year and celebrate with festivals, crafts, songs, and rhymes
- Allow for deep and meaningful play to unfold
- Receive respect and recognition for the challenging task of conscious parenting

Ginger Smith is a Waldorf trained teacher with a degree in interdisciplinary arts. She began her journey with children as a children's entertainer. After becoming a mother of twins, Ginger became acutely interested in early childhood and has dedicated much of her studies to the development of the young child. Ginger developed a homeschool preschool/kindergarten program with a partner/co-teacher and together they applied a full Waldorf curriculum to their program. More recently she has assisted at Seeds of Joy as well as Tivoli preschools. This is Ms. Ginger's second year teaching at A Magic Forest. She is excited to have the opportunity to develop her classes at A Magic Forest and looks forward to the beautiful journey ahead.
